HISTORY OF NORTH DAKOTA DECA

High School & Post Secondary Divisions

HISTORY OF DECA IN NORTH DAKOTA

As the Distributive Education Program developed, the professional members directly involved in the activities of the student of DE felt that additional curricular activity was needed to supplement the program itself. Students in Distributive Education did not have the opportunity to develop their potential in other extra curricular or co-curricular activities within the school district because they attended school in the morning and were released from school early to go to work. For the purposes of developing a respect for education in marketing and distribution and of promoting leadership and understanding of the responsibilities of citizenship in this country, the teacher-coordinators in North Dakota organized, in 1953, at Valley City High School on April 10th to form the North Dakota Association of DECA.

Seven high schools were represented from the following cities:

Enderlin	Garrison
Jamestown	Kenmare
Minot	Valley City
Wahpeton

It was voluntary to have clubs and two of the larger cities did not have clubs. A state charter was received at the eighth Annual National Convention of DECA in San Antonio, Texas, April 25-28, 1954.

The first Annual North Dakota DECA Convention was held at Minot High School, October 9, 1953. Not all clubs were represented at Minot. The following officers were elected at the Valley City and Minot conventions:

PURPOSES AND OBJECTIVES

The purpose of DECA is to develop respect for education which will contribute to occupational competence, and to promote understanding and appreciation for the responsibilities of citizenship in our free, competitive enterprise system.

1. Assisting state associations in their growth and development of DECA.
2. Providing awards and recognition for youths who demonstrate outstanding qualities in marketing, merchandising and management skills.
3. Encouraging students to participate in an organized school activity (DECA) thus giving them an opportunity to develop responsibilities of leadership and citizenship.
4. Giving members a chance to learn and serve as both leaders and followers, and to offer the opportunity for state and national recognition that they might not have otherwise.
5. Maintaining DECA activities as school-centered, thus contributing to the school's purpose of preparing well-adjusted, employable citizens.
6. Working with business interests to upgrade student employment with interested firms.

What is DECA?

DECA identifies the Program of Youth Activity relating to Marketing Education. It is designed to develop future leaders for Marketing Education. The organization is non-profit, non-political, school centered and totally youth oriented. All chapters are self-supporting, with members paying local, state, and national dues. It is the only national youth organization operating in the nation's schools to attract young people to careers in marketing education.

Marketing Education was first organized in 1937, but it was not until 1948 that various DECA Chapters joined together and adopted the official name of Distributive Education Clubs of America. At that time, there were 17 charter states with a total membership of 793. From this beginning, DECA has grown to over 125,000 members annually in 4,000 school chapters.

Marketing Education prepares our high school and college students for rewarding careers in marketing, management, and entrepreneurship. DECA enhances that education ... by providing marketing related activities and leadership development based directly on classroom study. DECA's activities focus on competition, on the local, state and national level, in specific occupational skills, leadership development and management training.

The objective of both marketing education and DECA is to teach marketing and management skills in such diversified career areas as food marketing, hotel management, restaurant marketing and management, department and specialty store retailing, industrial and international marketing, finance and credit, advertising, insurance, wholesaling, and entrepreneurship. The curriculum is tailored to specific career goals of students but includes basic scholastic and communication skills human relations and employability skills.

Students are taught the fundamentals of marketing and management as well as the principles of economics and free enterprise through classroom instruction, on the job training, and DECA activities.

In every state, four territories, the District of Columbia and Canada, DECA offers students the opportunity to excel and to be recognized for their achievements in marketing education.

DECA's student divisions - High School, and Delta Epsilon Chi at the college level - are student organizations specifically crated to provide teaching / learning experiences to be used both in and out of the classroom. DECA is not extracurricular. Recognized by the state boards of education and by federal legislation, DECA is an integral part of the marketing education instructional program.

DECA is one of the best examples of the business community working cooperatively to create a well-trained, educated work force from which business can draw future managers and marketing personnel. It is a relationship of mutual benefit.

Marketing Education exists because business demands that it exist. As global economic competition intensifies, a growing emphasis will be placed on education - particularly management and marketing education.

History has proven that a nation prospers in direct proportion to the educational level of its workers, managers and leaders. America is in a struggle for world economic and political leadership. Marketing education and DECA are effective weapons for this struggle.

For over forty years, since 1947, business leaders and DECA have worked hand in hand to educate a quality labor pool of marketing and management specialists. Thousands of local businesses and over sixty major United States Corporations recognize DECA as a vital link between the classroom and the business world ... a bridge between school and productive employment.

PUBLICATIONS

The NEW DIMENSIONS has been published for and about DECA members since it replaced the DECA Distributor, which started in 1947. It is intended to inform the membership trends and activity in Marketing and Distributive Education, and provides a vehicle for member ideas in different areas of activity. Newsletters and other publications are circulated to all chapters. The newsletter is primarily concerned with news, which affects the chapters on a state or national level. One key publication, which is a must for all progressive chapters and individuals in the DECA Handbook. It clarifies the educational advantages of DECA chapter activity, suggests procedures for local chapter improvement and development, and aids the DECA chapter function in supplementing Marketing Education Programs.
